

THE MEN BEYOND THE GLASS

Too rock for the Folkies and too folk for the Rockies, the Bastards could please or disappoint almost everyone. Formed back in 2007, they play a unique blend of folk/rock and Traditional Irish Music. Uilleann pipes, tenor banjo, mandolin, Irish flute: there are few others bands in the folk/rock scene that could compete with the Bastards in terms of deep knowledge of Irish Traditional Music and Irish culture and society.

The new album "The Men Beyond The Glass" will be released worldwide on April 24th; expect the boundaries of so called Celtic Rock to be overstepped, giving way to new sounds and a unique way of mixing Irish Trad and Rock/Folk music. 50 minutes of brand new original music condensed in 12 tracks that subvert the expected drinking song clichés. You are invited to listen to 12 stories that, like never before, take you to a different, intimate dimension. Behind the artist, past the drinker, you are now allowed to the underlying reality of victories and failures, the wonder of life despite its challenges, the resolution it takes to get older without getting any wiser. Twelve stories that welcome you to meet the men beyond the glass...
